Just about anyone can dive into trading NADEX binary options if you can get access to an account, and “try it out”, “give it a try.”

I hear those two phrases often. I’m not sure where they come from. But I tell you now, those the casual attitude towards trading and day trading binary options are, as mama says, “crusin for a brusin!” (in older non sissified times).

You can “try out” a demo account but that’s about it. Many think they can just walk into trading and just make money right away. Maybe that’s the way advertising hype has brainwashed people into thinking. But you probably know by now that it's not true. You have to learn how to day trade NADEX in order to do it well. And then you practice to the point of Mastery so you can respond correctly in real time.

Hey some may have some initial luck but initial luck usually leads to quite a s"chmack down" later. You need to do trading right. Don't be "that guy" who dives in and causes a lot of damage to their accounts and their emotions. Take the pains to learn to do day trading right (which really isn't all that much work compared to most things that pay far less) and the rewards can be GREAT over time!
